regulation made simple

competition intelligence state aid & subsidies

Cullen International's State Aid & Subsidies service monitors and explains the EU rules designed to ensure that public support measures in telecoms and the digital economy do not unduly distort competition and private investment.

The principal focus of the service lies in the application of state aid rules to subsidised broadband deployment and take-up measures, on which EU member states spent €17.5bn between 2014 and 2022.

The service allows companies to prepare for the business risks and commercial opportunities presented by EU state aid rules. State authorities responsible for preparing and executing national digital strategies in Europe and elsewhere will find the service an invaluable tool for comparing publicly funded initiatives in other countries.

Topical coverage

The service focuses on demand- and supply-side state aid measures related to fixed and wireless broadband.

Other topics include:

- other cases of alleged state aid to telecoms operators, for example in relation to spectrum awards;
- cases of alleged state aid in the form of big tech tax benefits;
- key EU funding initiatives in telecoms and digital economy, such as the Recovery and Resilience Facility (RRF) and the Connecting Europe Facility (CEF); and
- the EU Foreign Subsidies Regulation (FSR).

The database offers a quick and cost-effective tool to cut through complexity and draw comparisons with your own local circumstances.

Our clear and concise case summaries explain the legal assessment of the state aid measure and highlight the key quantitative aspects (including the budget, duration and intensity of aid).
