

Dr Milan Jankovic

Director, the Republic Agency for Electronic Communication (RATEL) – Serbia
IEEE member

Dr Milan Jankovic received the B.Sc. (1975), M.Sc. (1990) and Ph.DEE (1999) degrees from the University of Belgrade, Faculty of Electrical Engineering, Department of Telecommunication. He was appointed Assistant Professor in the Department of Telecommunication.

After fourteen years in the telecommunication industry, responsible for introducing new technologies and products, he joined the Community of Yugoslav PTT, in 1990, as Project leader in R&D Department responsible for development and implementation of appropriate access network architectures.

From December 2002 to March 2006 he was Director General of the Community of Yugoslav PTT.

He was a member of three EURESCOM Projects: "Implementation Frameworks for Integrated Wireless - Optical Access Networks", "UMTS Radio Access" and "Open Service Access for 3G Mobile Networks".

He has published more than 150 papers in Proceedings of International and Domestic Conferences and International (IEEE Communication Magazine) and Domestic Magazines. He is co-author of the book "Access Networks".

He is now Director of the Republic Agency for Electronic Communication of the Republic of Serbia.