The Americas Service

Cullen International expanded its portfolio of regulatory intelligence services to Latin America in 2010, and to the US and Canada in 2016. Our Americas services, cover regulatory developments in the telecommunications, media and digital economy sectors, providing essential, timely insight into the region's ever-changing communications regulatory landscape.

Clients of our Americas services include national regulators, government ministries, leading industry organisations, as well as multilateral institutions, who trust and value our strict independence, deep regulatory knowledge, local expertise, and our personal approach to customer support.

Readily accessible online, our Telecoms, Media and Digital Economy regulatory intelligence enables clients to easily:

- keep up to date with the key regulatory developments;
- cut through the complexity of technical questions and procedural measures;
- understand the commercial and policy implications of the latest developments.

Our research is presented in well structured, concise and continuously updated reports. The reports are available in English; some are also available in Spanish and all are available for easy download in PDF format or for printing direct from the screen.

Our online search functionalities allow for fast retrieval of benchmarks and reports dating back 2010.
