BITS Seminar – Brussels – University Foundation
Thursday February 2, 2016 3pm to 7:30pm

Internet & IP Peering

IP peering, transit, paid peering/on-net only, private and public peering are some of the commercial agreements underpinning the functioning of internet.

Regulated types of access to telco networks (e.g. bitstream) are well understood in policy making circles. Peering agreements are usually not discussed except for odd cases (e.g. Orange-Cogent in France in 2012) or the debate on data termination in the run up to ITU WCIT 2012 in Dubai.

The purpose of this BITS seminar is two-fold:

- to provide participants with a basic understanding of the functioning of key internet concepts (Autonomous Systems, root servers, Border Gateway Protocol (BGP), routing tables...). These will be explained in plain English for the layman!
- to shed some light on the various types of IP peering and the reasons for disagreements between telcos and (large) content providers.
